NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

BARON ANDRIES VAN DEN ABBEELE, a former alderman of Bruges responsible for finance and urban renewal, has published extensively on the history of Bruges. He is Honorary President of ICOMOS, Belgium and Vice-President of the Belgian Royal Commission for Monuments and Sites.

ROGER BOWDLER works as a historian with English Heritage. His particular interest lies in funerary monuments, but forthcoming publications include essays on Millais, on Speke airport and on the inter-war London suburb.

OLIVER C. BRADBURY is a free-lance historian. Recent publications include a CD-ROM review for The Times and an account of Byron's visit to Cheltenham in The Byron Journal.

PETER BURMAN is Director for the Centre for Conservation in the Department of Archaeology at the University of York and has been for many years a committee member of SPAB. His essay on Philip Webb, on whom he is planning a substantial study, is a modified version of the Society's annual lecture for 1998.

SIR HOWARD COLVIN'S Collected Essays are due for publication in 1999.

ROBERT CRAYFORD is an authority on seventeenth- and eighteenth-century building technology. His career as an architectural archivist and adviser has included periods of employment at St Paul's Cathedral for the Church Commissioners and the Corporation of London.

J. MORDAUNT CROOK, Professor of Architectural History at the University of London, a former editor of Architectural History and a prolific author chiefly on nineteenth-century topics, has most recently published The Rise of the Nouveaux Riches: Style and Status in Victorian and Edwardian Architecture.

JAMES STEVENS CURL is Emeritus Professor of Architectural History at De Montfort University, Leicester. Among his many works are The Life and Works of Henry Roberts, The Art and Architecture of Freemasonry, Egyptomania and most recently The Oxford Dictionary of Architecture.

CAMILLA EDWARDS studied History of Art at the University of Edinburgh and now works for Visiting Arts, London. She has a specialist interest in the architecture of Islam and writes regularly on contemporary Islamic art.

DAVID EDWARDS has pursued a lifelong interest in conservation and the structure of buildings and now runs a building consultancy.

GEORGE FAIRFULL SMITH is a freelance historian specializing in the art and architecture of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century Glasgow.

CLAIRE GAPPER, the Society's conference secretary, has recently completed her Ph.D. at the Courtauld Institute on 'Plasterers and Plasterwork in City, Court and Country, c. 1530–c. 1640'.

ANTHONY GERAGHTY won the President's Commendation in 1997. He now teaches at the Mackintosh School of Architecture, Glasgow and is currently preparing a new catalogue of the Wren collection at All Souls College, Oxford.

QINGHUA GUO teaches East Asian Architecture and Planning at the University of Melbourne. Her book The Structure of Chinese Timber Architecture: Twelfth-Century Design Standards and Construction Principles was published in 1999, and a Dictionary recording 1,000 years of Chinese architecture is due for completion soon.

EILEEN HARRIS is the author of Thomas Wright: Arbours and Grottoes and British Architectural Books and Writers 1556–1785, winner of the Alice Davis Hitchcock medallion in 1992. Her book on The Furnished Interiors of Robert Adam is now nearing completion.

HENTIE LOUW is Senior Lecturer in Architecture at Newcastle University. He has published several papers on post-medieval construction history in Britain.

CHARLES MCKEAN is Professor of History at the University of Dundee, joint editor with Deborah Howard of The Architectural History of Scotland and editor and frequent author of the Architectural Guides to Scotland.

ANGELO MAGGI is a graduate of the University of Venice, currently working on a Ph.D. on Roslin Chapel. His essay printed in this issue won the President's Commendation for 1998.

BRANKO MITROVIĆ, a graduate of the Universities of Belgrade & Pennsylvania, is a Senior Lecturer at the Unitec Institute of Technology, Auckland, New Zealand. He is the author of several studies of Palladio and has recently published a translation and commentary on Vignola's Regola delli cinque ordini.

ANTHONY QUINEY, a former Chairman of the Society, is currently President of the Royal Archaeological Institute and Professor of Architectural History at the University of Greenwich. He is now working on a book on medieval urban houses in Britain.

JOHN SAMBROOK, formerly Senior Illustrator of the Survey of London, is a self-employed fanlight maker and author of Fanlights.

GENE WADDELL is an American architectural historian interested primarily in ideas of design and construction.

CHRISTOPHER WEBSTER lectures in architectural history at Staffordshire University. He has made special studies of architectural practice in Leeds and of the work of R. D. Chantrell.

VOLKER M. WELTER, who teaches in the Department of Architecture at Edinburgh University, is currently working on a research project City and Spirituality in Modernity. He recently acted as Curator on an exhibition at Strathclyde University of Images from Patrick Geddes, the catalogue of which has now been published as Collecting Cities.

CHRISTOPHER WOODWARD is Assistant Curator at Sir John Soane's Museum, having formerly been Curator of the Building of Bath Museum. In Ruins, his book on architectural ruins, will be published next year.
