SCHUMPETER PRIZE

The Schumpeter Prize for 1971 has been awarded by the President and Fellows of Harvard College to Professor Albert Fishlow and Professor Robert W. Fogel. The citation for the Prize is as follows:

To Professor Albert Fishlow of the University of California at Berkeley and Robert William Fogel of the University of Chicago: pioneers of the "new economic history." Their work has extended the range of econometric analysis to long-run problems of economic growth. Their efforts have yielded rigorous and fresh interpretations of the American past.

Previous winners of the Prize have been: Ragnar Frisch, Erik Dahmen, Henry Rosovsky and Gavin Ohlin.

COLE PRIZE

The Cole Prize is awarded annually to the author of the best article published in the J. E. H. The winner is selected by vote of the Board of Editors and is announced at the meetings of the Economic History Association. The vote of the Board conducted before the Atlantic City meetings resulted in a tie and therefore the Cole Prize for 1970-71 was divided between:

Richard C. Edwards, for "Economic Sophistication in 19th Century Congressional Tariff Debates" (December 1970 issue)

William W. McCormick and Charles M. Franks, for "A Self-Generating Model of Long-Swings for the American Economy, 1860-1940" (June 1971 issue)

The winner the previous year was Richard Sylla for "Federal Policy, Banking Market Structure, and Capital Mobilization in the United States, 1863-1913" (December 1969 issue).

COLUMBIA — NEVINS PRIZE

William Whitney of the University of Pennsylvania has won the 1970-1971 Columbia University Prize in American Economic History in honor of Allan Nevins. The title of Professor Whitney's award-winning manuscript is "The Structure of the American Economy in the Late Nineteenth Century."

The award, $1,000, together with a contract for publication by the Columbia University Press, is intended to encourage clarity and persuasiveness in economic analysis. Dissertations, and other book-length manuscripts, are eligible. Manuscripts should be sent before June 30 each year to: History Editor, Columbia University Press, 562 West 113th Street, New York, New York 10025. The winner will be announced at the annual meeting of the Economic History Association.

1972 MEETINGS OF THE ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION

One of the sessions of the Wilmington, Delaware meetings of the Economic History Association will be devoted to a discussion of the new Ph.D. dissertations in economic history. Those who wish to have their dissertations considered should submit 2 typed copies of a summary of between 500 and 1000 words, one each to Professor Gary Walton, Department of Economics, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana 47401, and to Professor Morton Rothstein, Department of History, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin 53706.

ORAL HISTORY IN THE UNITED STATES

Published by the Oral History Association, Oral History in the United States: A Directory, describes 230 oral history projects and their holdings of tapes and transcripts. The 120-page guide, arranged by state and indexed in depth, is designed as an aid to researchers. It may be ordered at $4 a copy, postpaid, from Oral History Association, Box 20, Butler Library, Columbia University, New York 10027.

The fourth meeting of Cheiron: The International Society for the Behavioral and Social Sciences is to be held at the University of Calgary, Calgary, Alberta, Canada, on June 27, 28, 29, and 30, 1972. Address submitted papers or requests for additional information to R. G. Weyant, Department of Psychology, The University of Calgary, Calgary, Alberta, Canada. Deadline for papers is January 1, 1972. The emphasis of the meetings will be interdisciplinary and international.

MERRIMACK VALLEY TEXTILE MUSEUM

The Merrimack Valley Textile Museum announces the following accessions. Barnes Textile Associates has donated to the Museum some 1600 textile engineering reports on textile mills, mainly American, covering the period 1925-1970. Material covered includes almost every aspect of textile manufacturing.

The National Association of Wool Manufacturers has deposited approximately 60 shelf feet of material, including information on organization, membership, meetings, etc. from 1889-1971. Considerable information is included on the association's involvement on behalf of manufacturers in various aspects of the wool textile industry. Also included is a complete news clipping file (1933-1971) on pertinent subjects, and photographic and printed materials from the association's offices.

For information concerning access to these reports, contact Miss H. Wright, Keeper of Prints and Manuscripts, Merrimack Valley Textile Museum, North Andover, Massachusetts 01845.
