This book stems from a dissertation written at the University of St Andrews. Subsequent revisions were made to the text during my tenure at the universities of Leiden and Groningen. I am grateful to all these institutions for their support. The research was generously supported by an Ewan and Christine Brown Postgraduate Studentship in the Arts and Humanities, the School of Classics at the University of St Andrews and the Prins Bernhard Cultuurfonds. I am thankful for their contributions.

Myles Lavan has been indispensable in the writing of this book. I am indebted for his sharp and insightful comments that he gave as my PhD supervisor and for his continued support and stimulus after my graduation. It was a privilege to make this intellectual journey with him.

Special thanks are also due to John Patterson, who, as the examiner of the thesis, provided a wealth of useful comments. I owe further gratitude to Walter Scheidel, Luuk de Ligt, Rens Tacoma, Arjan Zuiderhoek, John Weisweiler, Onno van Nijf and Paweł Borowski, who all generously read the manuscript in whole or in part. Their feedback sharpened my thoughts and prevented me from making many mistakes (any remaining faults are, of course, my own). The two anonymous readers of Cambridge University Press also provided many helpful comments and suggestions, for which I am very grateful. I thank Britt Postema for helping me with the collection of the Ostian epigraphical material. I would also like to express my gratitude to the team at Cambridge University Press, including Michael Sharp and Katie Idle, and Giridharan Gunasekaran and Dan Shutt, for their assistance in converting my manuscript into a published book. Finally, I am indebted to the University Library Groningen, the Nicolaas Mulerius Fund and the Faculty of Arts for their generous contributions in allowing me to publish this book as open access.

I would not have been able to complete this book without Jorien, my tower of strength at home. The joy you bring to my life is the cradle of all my endeavours. I dedicate this book to you. The continued love, confidence and support from my parents Bram and Gerrie, my brother Jeroen and my friends David, Maarten, Pieter and Martijn forms another foundation of my life. Finally, credit is due to the more recent additions to my life, Albi, Mimi and Noah, who in their own playful way prevent me from losing touch with the world of today.
