QUARTERLY CHRONICLE AND DOCUMENTATION

British Policy in China 1895-1902

L. K. Young

The revelation of Chinese weakness in the Sino-Japanese war of 1894-5 resulted in a scramble for concessions in China which called into question Great Britain's paramount position in the Far East. At the same time, the political rivalries which emerged from that struggle forced British statesmen into a searching reappraisal of Britain's international position at the end of the 19th century. The interaction of these two aspects of policy is explored in this detailed study of British diplomacy in China during Lord Salisbury's Third Administration. 6 maps 70/-

Britain and Japan 1858-1883

Grace Fox

This book deals with Anglo-Japanese relations during the crucial early years of British influence in Japan. Based on primary materials in British, Japanese, and American archives, it throws new light on Britain's controversial connections with the Meiji Restoration and on the economic and social changes effected with British assistance before and after that turning-point in Japanese history. 13 plates 3 maps £5/10/-

The Poems of Li-Ho (791-817)

Translated and edited with an introduction by J. D. Frodsham

Li Ho was one of the most brilliant poets of the T'ang dynasty, itself the finest era of Chinese poetry. His sensibility is strikingly modern: he has been compared with Baudelaire, Keats, and Trakl. This first complete edition of his work reveals an unfamiliar facet of the Chinese imagination, and should be of great value to anyone seriously interested in world literature. 65/-

Confucianism in Action

Edited by David S. Nivison and Arthur F. Wright

The papers in this volume are concerned with three aspects of Chinese life in which Confucian ideas have been prominent: familial institutions, bureaucratic behaviour, and the power relations between monarch and the literati. Two papers examine Japanese Confucianism, with particular attention to the political and educational role of professional Confucianists. Paper covers 30/- Stanford University Press

Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, together with a duplicate copy, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University, with the support of the International Association for Cultural Freedom. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

Himalayan Frontiers

A Political review of British, Chinese, Indian and Russian Rivalries

Dorothy Woodman

Himalayan Frontiers describes the traditional and customary boundaries which played an insignificant role in the relations between Russia, India and China until the British conquest of India challenged an expanding Czarist empire in the nineteenth century and an expanding Chinese empire in the years following the Younghusband mission to Lhasa in 1904.

Indo-Pakistani hostility, Sino-Soviet rivalry and Sino-Pakistani rapprochement are all discussed in Himalayan Frontiers, and the author demonstrates how important it is for India's progress that she no longer live in a state of suspended hostility with her neighbours, especially since the emergence of China as an atomic power. To conceive of the Himalayas as a vast radar screen is to endanger the future, not only of India, but of more than half the people of the world who live in Asia.

440 pages, 31 maps – including 3 coloured folding, appendices of texts of treaties and agreements, bibliography, index, 90s.
