

OLD WINE IN NEW BOTTLES

LAWRENCE NEVINS

TERRORISTS IN THE SAFEST CITY

GEORGE B. RINGWALD

HUNGER & CHRISTIAN DUTY

LEWIS B. SMEDES

SACRED MUSIC IN THE GARDEN OF MADISON

LIONEL TIGER

& RICHARD JOHN NEUHAUS, WILSON CAREY McWILLIAMS, PETER L. BERGER, JAMES FINN, RANDALL G. STOKES, WILLIAM V. O'BRIEN, STANLEY G. PAYNE, JEFFREY L. LANT, ABRAHAM MARTIN MURRAY

- Where—if anywhere—should U.S. foreign policy draw the line? Not long ago everyone agreed South Korea was within “the first line of defense.” Today it is not clear. Three important articles explain why U.S. policy toward Korea is undergoing what used to be called “agonizing reappraisal.” Not least important is a moving manifesto by South Koreans highlighting the oppressions perpetrated by the Park regime.
- Ivan and Miriam London bring reports on hunger in China up-to-date with “Hunger—Part II.” As the post-Mao era draws nearer, refugees from China give us a glimpse of revelations to come.
- The cultural contradictions of Western society are much in the intellectual air of late. In “Worldly Souls” William E. Johnston, Jr., analyzes the religious losses we have sustained, while in “A Theory of Civil Religion” Frederick O. Bonkovsky suggests our cultural crisis may not be so unique as we fear (or hope).

FOUNDED 1914 by ANDREW CARNEGIE

V
1
9
|
5

M A Y

7
6
