IDENTITY AND THE CASE FOR GAY RIGHTS

RACE, GENDER, RELIGION AS ANALOGIES

David A. J. Richards

"David Richards proposes a bold new benchmark against which to judge structures of social hierarchy: the concept of 'moral slavery.' In a richly historical analysis, he argues that racist, sexist, and anti-gay laws share a common function—the degradation of human identity and the denial of rights of conscience—that he summarizes as 'moral slavery,' and therefore stand equally condemned by our most fundamental constitutional values. Particularly intriguing is his examination of how sexualization performs the work of dehumanization, whether the target is women or racial or sexual minorities."—Nan Hunter, coeditor of AIDS Agenda: Emerging Issues in Civil Rights.

Crime and Justice: A Review of Research

Youth Violence

Edited by Michael Tonry and Mark H. Moore

Youth violence has become the most contentious issue in current debates on crime policy, not the least because of the sharp increase in violence among the young since the mid-1980s. Youth Violence provides a reliable, and up-to-date overview of policy issues and research developments.

Colonizing Hawai'i

The Cultural Power of Law
Sally Engle Merry

How does law transform family, sexuality, and community in the fractured social world characteristic of the colonizing process? In Colonizing Hawai'i, Sally Engle Merry traces the complex process of colonialism from the vantage point of a small town in windward Hawai'i. Merry examines a century of court records from this town to illuminate striking changes in everyday social life, demonstrating the power of law to articulate a new cultural order on the fragments of the old.

"This is an important study which details a crucial (and often ignored) chapter in American legal history."—Annelise Riles, Northwestern University School of Law

The International Journal of Penology

Editor-in-Chief David Garland School of Law and Department of Sociology, New York University, USA

Managing Editor Andrew Coyle International Centre for Prison Studies, King's College, London, UK

Punishment & Society is a new international journal that will provide an interdisciplinary forum for research and scholarship dealing with punishment, penal institutions and penal control.

Published twice in 1999
Published quarterly from 2000
January, April, July, October
ISSN: 1462-4745

It aims to advance and refine the impressive body of work that has emerged in this field over the last two decades, and to be a source of informed commentary and criticism regarding the penal policies and practices of our time.

The journal will publish high quality papers that deal with key issues in penal theory, penal law and penal practice, and with the philosophical, cultural or historical aspects of punishment that are of interest to a wide international readership.
