

Desegregating Private Higher Education in the South
Duke, Emory, Rice, Tulane, and Vanderbilt
MELISSA KEAN

“Kean’s study helps bring southern colleges and universities to the forefront of substantive scholarship on higher education. This historical analysis of academic policies on civil rights and race connects institutional histories to the heart of American social history. This is a welcome book.”—John Thelin, author of A History of American Higher Education

Bright Epoch
Women and Coeducation in the American West
ANDREA G. RADKE-MOSS

With the passage of the Morrill Act in 1862, many states in the Midwest and the West chartered land-grant colleges following the Civil War. Bright Epoch tells the history of women’s struggle for gender inclusion at four land-grant universities in the West: Iowa Agricultural College, the University of Nebraska, Oregon Agricultural College, and Utah State Agricultural College.

Examining the State
Secondary Schools of Wales
1896–2000

Edited by W. Gareth Evans, Robert Smith, and Gareth Elwyn Jones

Using never before analyzed documents, this volume demonstrates how the present system of external examinations has evolved over the past century and examines the inherent difficulty of making judgments about school standards, past and present.

EDUCATIONAL THEORY

Edited by
NICHOLAS C. BURBULES

Published on behalf of the College of Education at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and co-sponsored by The John Dewey Society, the Philosophy of Education Society, and the College of Education at the University of Illinois at Chicago

The general purposes of Educational Theory are to foster the continuing development of educational theory and to encourage wide and effective discussion of theoretical problems within the educational profession. In order to achieve these purposes, the journal is devoted to publishing scholarly articles and studies in the foundations of education, and in related disciplines outside the field of education, which contribute to the advancement of educational theory. It is the policy of the sponsoring organizations to maintain the journal as an open channel of communication and as an open forum for discussion.
