Baldwin and the Conservative Party

The Crisis of 1929–1931

Stuart Ball

Using a wealth of primary sources, including local Conservative Party archives never before drawn together, Stuart Ball provides the first full analysis of the role of Britain's Conservative Party in opposition during the years 1928–31—a period of economic and political crisis that led to the reconstruction of modern British political life.

“Lucid and well-researched. . . . A major contribution to twentieth-century British political history.”—Chris Wrigley $35.00

Collector of Genius

A Life of Sir George Beaumont

Felicity Owen and David Blayney Brown

The first comprehensive biography of Sir George Beaumont—friend and patron of Constable, Wordsworth, and Coleridge, successful painter, and a collector whose acquisitions became the nucleus of the National Gallery in London. Felicity Owen and David Blayney Brown provide a balanced and sensitive portrayal of this central figure in the artistic and literary worlds of Regency England. 100 illus. $35.00

Proceedings in Parliament 1625

The Secret Lives of Trebitsch Lincoln

Bernard Wasserstein

Member of parliament, Anglican curate, German agent, Buddhist abbot—Trebitsch Lincoln was one of the most astonishing figures in modern history. Unearthing papers, police reports, intelligence files, and diplomatic dispatches from more than a dozen countries, Bernard Wasserstein unravels the life and career of this many-faceted man.

“No one is ever going to write a better-researched or better book on Trebitsch Lincoln than Wasserstein.”—Hugh Trevor-Roper 24 illus. $27.50

The Flogging of Phineas McIntosh

A Tale of Colonial Folly and Injustice, Bechuanaland 1933

Michael Crowder

In 1933 the Regent of the Bangwato in Britain's Bechuanaland Protectorate sentenced a young white laborer to a flogging, provoking a crisis that had repercussions throughout the British Empire. In a richly documented new book Michael Crowder deftly uses this incident to examine the nature of the colonial relationship during this period.

“A fine example of the use of a micro study to illuminate a macro theme.”—Leonard Thompson $27.50

Richard Redgrave

edited by Susan P. Casteras and Ronald Parkinson

Artist, co-author of A Century of British Painters, and Surveyor of the Queen's Pictures, Richard Redgrave (1804–1888) was highly regarded in his own era but has become almost forgotten in the years since. This lavishly illustrated book discusses the life, career, and many achievements of this remarkable Victorian figure. 150 b/w + 12 color illus. $40.00

Announcing the completion of a new series—

University of Chicago

Readings in Western Civilization

John W. Boyer and Julius Kirshner, General Editors

The University of Chicago Readings in Western Civilization makes available to students and teachers a unique selection of primary documents—many never before anthologized, many in new translations or reedited for an undergraduate audience. These readings, prepared by an outstanding group of scholars for the Western civilization sequence at the University of Chicago, provide exemplary core texts for history sequences as well as ideal supplementary readings for a wide variety of courses. An introduction by Eric Cochrane (Western Civilization at the University of Chicago: An Introduction to Teachers, available upon request) explains the aims and methods of the Chicago course and indicates ways in which the readings can be used in courses such as the History of the Middle Ages, the French Revolution, and Modern European History.

Britain — Then and Now

A Selection from St. Martin's Press

Glastonbury Abbey

The Holy House at the Head of the Moors Adventurous

James P. Carley

Glastonbury Abbey has been the focus of fantastic myths and legends for most of its 1000-year history. James Carley offers the first general survey of the great Abbey, examining its factual history as well as the legends of occult magic, Arthurian romance, and what has been called "the immemorial mystery of Glastonbury."

1988 200 pp. ISBN 0-312-02116-X $24.95

Britain and the Arab-Israeli Conflict 1948-51

Ilan Pappé

Based on primary sources made available only recently in British, Israeli and American archives, this book examines Britain's original policy for the Mandatory partition of Palestine, the stages of implementation and the post-Mandatory era.

1988 320 pp. ISBN 0-312-01573-9 $49.95

The British General Election of 1987

David Butler and Dennis Kavanagh

The 1987 election, which returned Mrs. Thatcher for a record-breaking third term, was notable for a new level of campaigning professionalism. This book, the thirteenth in a series that has covered every election since the Second World War, examines, in detail, the nature of the Conservative victory.

Ephemeral Vistas

A History of Expositions Universelles, Great Exhibitions and World's Fairs, 1851-1939

Paul Greenhalgh

Studies in Imperialism

This book places the great exhibitions into historical and political context — relating the major issues and forces of the day to the people and objects on show. Greenhalgh discusses their organization, funding and lasting value (the impressions, buildings and monuments left in their wake) while arguing that imperialism, with its coded ideas and messages on display, lay at the core of the exhibitions.

A Manchester Book

The Falklands, Politics and War

G.M. Dillon

In 1982 Argentina seized the Falkland Islands in an attack which exposed fundamental weaknesses at the center of British decision-making. In this book G.M. Dillon analyzes the relationship between political judgement, bureaucratic advice and military intelligence in the mismanagement of Britain's Falklands policy.

KINGDOM AND COLONY

Ireland in the Atlantic World, 1560-1800

Nicholas Canny

Throughout its history, the English colonial enterprise was marked by tensions between intent and outcome, policy and practice. During the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries, those tensions were complicated by conflicting views of the proper relationship of Ireland to England. Kingdom and Colony explores the process of Irish colonization and discusses its implications for our understanding of colonial North America.

Nicholas Canny traces the patterns of British migration in the Atlantic world, the establishment of settlements in Ireland, and the various efforts to acculturate the Irish — and shows how Ireland came to be “the model for the management of those transoceanic territories that were soon to come under control of the English government.”

THE GREAT DEVONIAN CONTROVERSY

The Shaping of Scientific Knowledge among Gentlemanly Specialists

MARTIN J. S. RUDWICK

With a novelist's vivid detail, Rudwick recreates the Great Devonian Controversy of the 1830s and 1840s, a scientific debate about the dating of certain puzzling rock strata and fossils. "[It] could become one of our century's key documents in understanding science and its history."—Stephen J. Gould, New York Reviews of Books

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

A Primer for the People

DAVID P. CURRIE

Currie has written a masterful introduction to the Constitution for anyone interested in learning how it works and what it has come to mean. He shows us the Constitution as it actually operates, in the light of the decisions of the courts that have interpreted and applied it in the years since its adoption.

THE CONCEPT OF LIBERTY IN THE AGE OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

JOHN PHILLIP REID

"The Concept of Liberty is John Phillip Reid's statement of the essence of revolutionary jurisprudence, which he finds in the concept of liberty. It goes beyond anything I have read in explaining the constitutional theories of the American revolutionaries, particularly their views on the British constitution."—Steven B. Presser, Northwestern University
