When New York City Center Renovated

A busy theatre like New York's 2,700-seat City Center needs all the flexibility it can get. The house plays a ballet season, an opera company, a series of musicals and a wide variety of other attractions.

The resistance dimming system in the theatre required six men to operate and was cumbersome and imprecise.

Kliegl Brothers installed a new system this past summer which gave the City Center 100 control channels (operated through its own modern console) a ten-scene pre-set and a remarkable matrix panel that gave the lighting designers use of 162 dimmers.

Kliegl's system requires only two or three operators for maximum use . . . a substantial saving in direct labor cost. It occupies 40% less space than the old system did.

The system is based around Kliegl's famous "SCR Dimmer", which has built-in automatic current sensing, is insensitive to load variations and does not generate the electrical or RFI noise often associated with SCR units.

Kliegl Brothers is preparing a booklet describing the City Center renovation more fully than is possible in this space. Please write or call Kliegl Brothers (Att: Dr. Joel Rubin, Vice-Pres.) for your free advance copy.

TRADITIONAL CHINESE PLAYS, VOLUME 2

Longing for Worldly Pleasures and Fifteen Strings of Cash

Translated and edited by A. C. Scott

The present volume follows closely on Professor Scott's well-received first volume of traditional Chinese plays. His lucid introductions, detailed descriptions of performing technicalities, and explanatory notes open a new and fascinating world to the student and scholar of drama.

JOHN FORD AND THE TRADITIONAL MORAL ORDER

By Mark Stavig

In this comprehensive analysis of the works of the seventeenth-century English dramatist, John Ford, Professor Stavig argues that Ford was not the flaming iconoclast as so frequently pictured, but an orthodox Anglican deeply committed to classical ethics. "It is thorough in its documentation, scrupulous in its scholarship, and should be welcomed . . ."

MODERN DRAMA FROM COMMUNIST CHINA

Walter J. Meserve and Ruth I. Meserve, editors

There are few mirrors of culture comparable to the theater. But in The People's Republic of China the theater does not mirror the culture; it reflects only the "great red banner of Mao Tse-tung's thought."

This is the first American anthology of Communist Chinese plays. Using Communist translations in order to preserve the full effect of the Chinese Communist message, it shows the scope and variety of the dramatic literature. Arranged chronologically from a dynastic play revised and accepted by Communist party leaders to the current opera and a play about Viet Nam, the selections offer insights into the political, social, and economic climate of Communist China. The editors provide an extensive introduction on the history and use of the theater and the dramatists' talent as an integral part of Chairman Mao's strategy for reaching the Cultural Revolution's objectives.

A DRAMA OF SOULS

Studies in O'Neill's Super-Naturalistic Technique

by Egil Tornqvist

The primary aim of this systematic study is to demonstrate how O'Neill, by mobilizing all the resources of the modern theatre, sought to create what he called "a drama of souls," a drama concerned with the "behind-life," the metaphysical and psychological mysteries of life. Mr. Tornqvist analyzes most of O'Neill's forty-six published plays and discusses at length such dramas as The Emperor Jones, The Hairy Ape, Strange Interlude, Mourning Becomes Electra, and Long Day's Journey Into Night. The inclusion of passages from previously unpublished letters and of a detailed chronology of the plays further enhances the value of this significant contribution to O'Neill scholarship. $7.50

THE COMPLETE MASQUES

by Ben Jonson

edited by Stephen Orgel

The Renaissance court masque, traditionally an entertainment of music, dancing, pageantry, and spectacular scenic effects, was transformed by Ben Jonson into a serious mode of literary expression. This modernized version of Jonson's masques is the most carefully edited and annotated text available; it is also the first one-volume edition to be published. $12.50

EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOR

by Ben Jonson

edited by Gabriele Bernhard Jackson

This edition attempts to provide for the modern reader an approach to the completeness of comic reference and density of comic language which the play offered its first readers. The notes and glosses place the comedy firmly in the context it is at pains to exploit—specific locale, current events, educated reading, and contemporary idiom. Thorough knowledge of these revitalizes the jokes while clarifying Jonson's extraordinary transmutation of the cultural amalgam of his age into the matter of the imagination. $7.50

With techniques similar to Gestalt psychology (as used by the Essalen Institute), this new book presents a program of discovery and development of the student's expressive behavior. It then applies this newly gained sense of expression to a thorough, detailed system of analysis based on the most recent organismic approaches to the literary text. This is then related to the esthetics of stage performance. This volume helps to liberate and nurture whatever talent the student possesses by leading him to the realization of his potential in all areas involved in acting. THE LANGUAGE OF FILM
Rod Whitaker, University of Texas

An examination of all elements and devices that make up the film message—visual, audio, narrative, histrionic, montage, space and time manipulation. Each element is considered from both the film-makers' and the viewers' points of view. Particularly useful illustrations clarify concepts that are difficult to transmit through words only: depth of field, framing, lighting, effects of lens compression. Speech for the Stage

by EVANGELINE MACHLIN

"An extremely useful handbook for a conscientious actor. The necessary techniques are clearly explained with such enthusiasm that the reader finds himself doing the exercises before he knows it. . . . I see a great future for it as a text for voice and diction classes and public speaking groups. . . . The book fills a desperate need for a common sense book on stage speech for the American actor."—Dr. Paul Kozelka, Teachers College, Columbia University.

"For years a new book about speech for actors has been needed. . . . Dr. Machlin is eminently qualified to write this helpful volume. . . . Recommended."—Quarterly Journal of Speech.

"A serious work for serious actors, it is highly recommended."—Library Journal.

"Especially designed for building better speech, not only for acting, but for everyday living. . . . Highly recommended."—Dramatics.

"It is the best book on the subject I have yet to discover. . . . The volume has been accepted here as the basic text for all the beginning classes in the professional acting program."—Professor Gordon Peacock, Head, Department of Drama, The University of Alberta.

Dr. Machlin was for seventeen years Director of Speech Studies at the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre in New York, and for seven years Lecturer in Speech at Columbia University (where she took her doctorate in education). More recently she has been Associate Professor in the Theatre Arts Division of Boston University. Among the well-known actors she has trained are Richard Boone, Tammy Grimes, Steve McQueen, Marian Seldes, Lee Grant, Suzanne Pleshette, Jo Van Fleet, Joanne Woodward and Faye Dunaway.

THE THEATRE OF JEAN-PAUL SARTRE

Dorothy McCall

In this revealing approach to the dramatic works of Jean-Paul Sartre, Dorothy McCall finds that the playwright uses the inherent ambiguity of the theatre—both real event and imaginary representation, both action and gesture—as dominating theme. $7.50

A Survey of Theatre Architecture from the Renaissance to the Present
Donald C. Mullin

Theatre structures in Europe and America have taken a remarkable variety of forms. This volume offers a compact survey from the Renaissance to the present. Numerous illustrations show the styles preferred by succeeding generations of architects, patrons, and playgoers. The text, relying on contemporary documents wherever possible, explains architectural concepts and shows how technical innovations influenced theatre construction. Many important theatres are discussed individually, and even after the eighteenth century, when theatres proliferated, specific and illustrated examples are used to describe general trends.

Theater East and West

Perspectives Toward A Total Theater
Leonard C. Pronko

"Professor Pronko's book is probably the first book in the English language that gives a serious, systematic and detailed attention to the possibility of enriching Western theater with Oriental theatrical techniques and ideas . . . [His] book not only augments substantially our understanding of the nature, concept and theatrics of the Oriental theater, it will also, we can predict, contribute considerably to the future development of the Western dramatic literature and theater."—Modern Drama
