
Widows in African Societies

Choices and Constraints

Edited by Betty Potash. Although widows constitute a quarter of the adult female population in many African societies, they have not been the focus of detailed, cross-cultural research. This is the first comparative anthropological study of widowhood in Africa, comprising ten case studies that cover a broad spectrum of societies in different parts of the continent. It shows clearly that widows are not passive objects of male transactions; they have interests and options, and make choices affecting their own lives. The book provides a needed corrective both to the male perspective on kinship and to women's studies that deal almost exclusively with the adult married women. In contrast to the traditional emphasis on widow remarriage and the functions such marriages have for the maintenance of marriage alliances, these papers deal with the women themselves and the quality of their lives. $35.00
