EDITORIAL POLICY

The British Journal of Political Science is an independent journal, whose policy is set by its editorial board. It is committed to no methodological orthodoxy over and above the normal canons of scholarship: clear and consistent use of words, logical and mathematical validity, and the use of appropriate evidence to substantiate empirical statements. Contributions are invited in all fields of political science, including political philosophy and political sociology. Work addressed to problems of general significance to students of politics will be published whatever the period(s) or place(s) drawn upon for evidence.

STUDIES

Multinational corporations and national government A case study of the U.K.'s experience, 1964 - 70

Michael Hodges, lecturer in interdisciplinary studies, University of Kent

Although this excellent book has taken for its theme the British experience of the rapid growth of multinational corporations, it provides a mass of evidence which can be used to evaluate their impact elsewhere.

The SPD and European integration

William E. Paterson, Department of Politics, University of Warwick

This examination of the West German Social Democratic Party's attitude to European institutions shows how domestic issues can influence policy. Comparison is made with the outlook of the British Labour Party.

Price to be determined

Marketing Boards and Ministers: A study of agricultural marketing boards as political and administrative instruments

Dr. P. J. Giddings, lecturer in politics, University of Reading

This is the first authoritative investigation into this rather unusual type of public body -- the only comparable material is concerned with the nationalised industries.

Government and industry in Britain

Stephen Blank, Council for European Studies, University of Pittsburgh

Foreword by Sir Norman Kipping, former Director General of the Federation of British Industries

Examining the role of the FBI in its relations with various governments, the author finds little evidence that the Federation influenced political attitudes.

A valuable work for all concerned with government/industry liaison.

Backbench Opinion in the House of Commons
1945–55

HUGH B. BERRINGTON

Professor of Politics at University of Newcastle-upon-Tyne

276 pages £6.50 hard cover

This book is based on a detailed analysis of signatures to backbench motions, of floor revolts and free votes in the House of Commons between 1945 and 1955—an exciting decade in modern political life. Professor Berrington examines the composition and inter-relationships of the different parliamentary opinion groups, and demonstrates the value of backbench motions as a source of information about MPs' attitudes by using floor revolts and free votes, wherever possible, to validate his findings.

Government in the Federal Republic of Germany

The Executive at Work

NEVIL JOHNSON

*Nuffield Reader in the Comparative
Study of Institutions, University of Oxford*

232 pages £3.50 hard cover

The emphasis of this book is firmly on government as an executive activity, on the institutional framework which exists in the Federal Republic for the overall control and direction of public action. It describes the different levels of government of the Federal Republic and attempts to dispel the idea that, provided we know all about the Federal or central level of government, then we need do no more than direct a nod at the other, subordinate levels.

EUROPEAN CONSORTIUM FOR POLITICAL RESEARCH

SEVENTH ESSEX SUMMER SCHOOL IN SCIENCE DATA ANALYSIS

19 JULY to 30 AUGUST 1974

The European Consortium for Political Research will be sponsoring the Seventh School, to be held at Essex from 19th July to 30th August. The main subjects to be covered will be selected from a range including:

INTRODUCTION TO DATA-ANALYSIS AND COMPUTER PROGRAMMING

REGRESSION: THEORY AND APPLICATIONS

MATHEMATICS FOR SOCIAL SCIENTISTS (INTRODUCTORY)

UNI- AND MULTIDIMENSIONAL SCALING

FACTOR ANALYSIS

CAUSAL MODELLING

TIME SERIES ANALYSIS

MATRIX ALGEBRA AND CALCULUS

MATHEMATICAL POLITICAL THEORY

COMPUTER-BASED SIMULATION

PROBLEMS OF CROSS-NATIONAL AGGREGATE ANALYSIS

PROBLEMS IN SURVEY-BASED ANALYSIS OF POLITICAL BEHAVIOUR

SAMPLING: THEORY AND DESIGN

PROBABILITY AND DISTRIBUTION THEORY FOR SOCIAL SCIENTISTS

POLICY AND PLANNING MODELS

Instruction will emphasise particularly the application of these techniques to data collections held by the School. Full supporting interactive computer facilities will be available. Special evening seminars and a weekend colloquium with visiting speakers will be held. Special provision will be made for French-speaking participants. This year there will again be a concurrent summer school in quantitative methods for historians. There will be ample opportunities for mixing between the two schools, and for exchange of ideas and criticisms. Financial support may be available to participants from their own Institutions or National Research Councils; failing such support, the Consortium may offer aid to suitable applicants. The organizers particularly wish to attract graduate students, research assistants and junior staff. Interested persons should write to:-

The Government and Politics of Ireland

Basil Chubb

This comprehensive account of the government and politics of Eire, first published in 1970, is unique in emphasizing the political sociology of the country. It examines Ireland's law and institutions, and deals with the political culture of the Irish—their attitudes and beliefs, and the extent and effectiveness of their own participation in politics. £1.30 Oxford Paperbacks

War Machinery and High Policy

Defence Administration in Peacetime Britain 1902–1914

Nicholas d'Ombrain

This book traces the interaction of Britain's defence policy and defence administration during the years between the turn of the century and the German invasion of Belgium and France in 1914. It examines the functions of the Committee of Imperial Defence, the Admiralty, and the War Office. It discusses the early pre-eminence of the C.I.D., its decline, and re-emergence as the foundation on which the modern Cabinet Office has been constructed. £4.50 Oxford Historical Monographs

Lincolnshire Politics 1832–1885

R. J. Olney

This is a study of the politics of a rural English county between the first and third Reform Acts. It examines the political behaviour of the landed and farming classes in the context of the local society and economy, and also deals with the relationship of county to national politics. £4 Oxford Historical Monographs

The Liberal Theory of Justice

A Critical Examination of the Principal Doctrines in
A Theory of Justice by John Rawls

Brian Barry

Dr Barry places Rawls's theory in its intellectual context and gives a systematic account of its basic features. He examines Rawls's claim to have provided a logical deduction of two 'principles of justice', and discusses the most important of Rawls's economic and political deductions. £3.25 paper covers £1
