

Notes on Contributors

Anthony Quinton

Formerly fellow of New College and president of Trinity College, Oxford. Author of The Nature of Things, The Politics of Imperfection, and Thoughts and Thinkers, etc.

Rowland Stout

Fellow in Philosophy at Oriel College, Oxford. He has recently published a book on the philosophy of action called Things That Happen Because They Should.

Evan Simpson

Professor of Philosophy and the Dean of Humanities at McMaster University. He is the author of Good Lives and Moral Education (1989) and of papers in moral and political philosophy. His article 'Aesthetic Appraisal', appeared in Philosophy in 1975.

James Cargile

Professor in the Corcoran Department of Philosophy at the University of Virginia and a previous contributor to Philosophy.

Hans-Johann Glock

Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of Reading. He is the author of A Wittgenstein Dictionary (Blackwell, 1966) and co-editor (with R. L. Arrington) of Wittgenstein and Quine (Routledge, 1966). He is currently writing a book on Quine and Davidson.

David E. Cooper

Professor of Philosophy at the University of Durham. His most recent books are World Philosophies: an Historical Introduction (1995) and Heidegger (1996). He is currently editing the series Classic Readings in Philosophy for Blackwell.

Quentin Smith

Professor of Philosophy at Western Michigan University, whose most recent books include Language and Time (Oxford, 1993), Theism, Atheism and Big Bang Cosmology (Oxford, 1993), The New Theory of Time (Yale University Press, 1994). and Time, Change and Freedom (Routledge, 1995). His earlier contribution to Philosophy is 'Concerning the Absurdity of Life' (January, 1991).

James Franklin

Lectures in Mathematics at the University of New South Wales, Sydney. His previous contributions to Philosophy have been on scepticism and on Aristotle's biology.

Notes on Contributors

Richard Norman

Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Kent. His publications include Free and Equal and Ethics, Killing and War.