Gundara, Gottfried Kolde, Mildred L. Larson, Christer Laurén, P. H. Nelde, John Platt, Miguel Siguan, T. Skutnabb-Kangas, Alan Thomas.

This journal publishes articles on the many aspects of multilingualism and multiculturalism. From the beginning it has aimed to range widely in all ways, covering, for example, contributions to theory, reports of research studies, descriptions of educational policies and systems, and accounts of teaching or learning strategies and assessment procedures. We are most concerned about the benefits and disadvantages of learning two or more languages from early childhood, the rights and obligations of minorities and the value to a community of an interaction between cultures.

Our experience so far indicates that there is a rich vein of high quality papers in all corners of the world, and a corresponding, committed readership involved actively in the opportunities, difficulties and challenges of bilingual, multilingual and multicultural communities. It is clear that a great deal of very good work is going on in many quarters. One prime function of the Journal of Multilingual and Multicultural Development is to disseminate views and experiences as widely as possible. The articles are supported in this task by sections which give short reports of works in progress, book reviews and letters from readers.

THOUGHT

Recent years have seen a revitalized classical liberalism emerge in the works of Austrian-school economists, Public Choice theorists, and such seminal figures as Hayek, Popper and Nozick. Too often, however, this liberalism has been mutually isolated from other intellectual traditions. Critical Review ends this isolation, bringing individualistic social theory into contact and conflict with such tendencies as Marxism and post-structuralism; in its pages, the new liberalism is developed, challenged and tested by rigorous debate spanning every discipline in the social sciences and humanities.

Forthcoming in Critical Review:

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical, or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, 102 Rackham Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-1070.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article.
