

THEORY and SOCIETY

Renewal and Critique in Social Theory

Theory and Society is an undogmatic bi-monthly journal of the social sciences, produced by a worldwide fellowship of scholars who seek, through synthesis of sociology and marxism, to deepen understanding of the 'present as history' and to renew critical social theory. It is published for critical sociologists, independent marxists, and for other unpacified intellectuals.

Theory and Society works to keep sociology and marxism open to one another, seeking to stimulate and to husband social theory's great traditions. Preserving the viable works of Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, and Karl Marx, we also develop them in creative directions suggested (for example) by Antonio Gramsci, Barrington Moore, C. Wright Mills, Max Horkheimer, Eric Hobsbawm, Jürgen Habermas, Michel Foucault, and Raymond Williams. Rather than the partisan of some special theory, then, Theory and Society is the guardian of a larger theoretic culture. Subsidized neither by professional associations, universities, nor private benefactors, Theory and Society has grown only because it publishes work of excellence and interest to its readers.

Mary P. Ryan

CRADLE OF THE MIDDLE CLASS
The Family in Oneida County,
New York, 1790-1865

A unique and exciting contribution to the history of women and the family. Ryan looks at the transformation of family life in antebellum America—a time when men and women were forced to find creative new ways to provide material and emotional security for themselves and their children. She examines in particular the emergence of the privatist middle class family, with its sharp separation of male and female roles.

In a case study of Utica, New York, Ryan analyzes the developing social structure of a frontier area whose major village became a commercial boom town and then a manufacturing center. Her exploration of changing life courses, and particularly her treatment of changing patterns of employment, education, and residence among teenagers, are highly significant additions to our knowledge of this formative period in American history. $24.95

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.
