A Short History of the Western Liturgy

Theodor Klauser

The original English edition of this concise history of the Roman mass has been unavailable for over a year. The second edition contains, unchanged, the main text, appendixes, and bibliography (one of the main features of the book), but there is a new fourth appendix covering the main developments during the last decade and a new supplementary bibliography of books in English. Second edition £4.50 paper covers £2.25

Temples and Temple-Service in Ancient Israel

Menahem Haran

The temple is the most prominent of all cultic institutions in ancient Israel, and indeed in the ancient Middle East as a whole. The primary object of this book is to define its essential character, and to describe various phenomena connected with it. £18.50

Melito of Sardis

On Pascha and Fragments

Edited by Stuart George Hall

Melito wrote On Pascha for a Church still partly tied to its Jewish origins and struggling to understand the Old Testament Passover festival in the light of Jesus Christ. This edition makes readily accessible not only a new reconstruction of a text rediscovered this century, with translation, introduction, and notes, but also all the known fragments of Melito's work. £7.50 Oxford Early Christian Texts

The Ethiopic Book of Enoch

M. A. Knibb with the assistance of E. Ullendorff

This edition aims to make available the whole of the evidence for the text of the Ethiopic Book of Enoch in as clear a way as possible. Volume 1 contains the text with a critical apparatus giving the Ethiopic and Greek variants; Volume 2 contains an introduction, an English translation, and notes on the text. £30

An Historian's Approach to Religion

Arnold Toynbee

An Historian's Approach to Religion, first published in 1956, is held by many to be Toynbee's masterpiece. This edition includes as an appendix Toynbee's last essay, 'Gropings in the Dark', written just before his fatal illness in 1974. It summarizes his final thoughts on the subjects of love, death, and existence. Second edition £6.50

The Apocalyptic Tradition in Reformation Britain 1530–1645

Katharine R. Firth

This book traces the influence of a Protestant interpretation of prophecy. It examines commentaries upon scripture, martyrologies, histories, and chronological speculations and considers their importance in the intellectual history of the period. Illustrated £10

Religious Reason

The Rational and Moral Basis of Religious Belief
Ronald M. Green

Since the early nineteenth century there has been a tendency in the study of religion to represent religious beliefs as not being a fully rational activity. The author questions this separation of religion and reason, and maintains that reason is employed not only in the spheres of theoretical, prudential, and moral behaviour and thought, but also in the sphere of religious belief. £9.25

Euthanasia

Edited by G. C. Oosthuizen

These papers represent the thinking of theologians, sociologists, physicians, psychiatrists, and others on one of the contentious issues of our time. Euthanasia is discussed from all possible angles, and the consensus seems to be 'yes' for passive euthanasia and 'no' for active euthanasia, as the participants in the symposium all feel that man has the right to a dignified death. £8.95

Christianity and the World Order

E. R. Norman

This book, based on Dr Norman's 1978 Reith Lectures, considers a subject of great topical significance: the implications of the contemporary politicization of Christianity. Ranging from the political radicalism of Latin American Marxist Christians to the problems encountered by Christianity in the Soviet Union, Dr Norman identifies and presents a critical analysis of the social and political ideas to which the modern Church is attaching itself. £3.50
Oxford Paperbacks £1.50

Herbert Butterfield: Writings on Christianity and History

Edited by C. T. McIntire

The interaction between Christianity and the historical process is a fruitful one, and Sir Herbert Butterfield's knowledge of the field is unsurpassed. Thirty years after its original publication, his Christianity and History is still a classic. This collection of his subsequent writings on the subject contains seventeen essays, nine of which have not been published before. £6.25

The Letters and Diaries of John Henry Newman

Volume II: Tutor of Oriel, January 1827 to December 1831
Volume III: New Bearings, January 1832 to June 1833

Edited by Ian Ker and Thomas Gornall

Volume II £20

Volume III £18.50

Judaism and Christian Beginnings

Samuel Sandmel

Samuel Sandmel here traces the history, institutions, and religious ideas of Judaism from 200 B.C. to A.D. 175. His main concern is to describe the formation and consolidation of Synagogue Judaism, which, as it was transformed into Christianity, ultimately became the religion of Europe. £11.50

A Greek- English Lexicon of the New Testament

and Other Christian Literature

WALTER BAUER

Second Edition Revised and Augmented by F Wilbur
Gingrich and Frederick W
Danker from Walter Bauer's
Fifth Edition

For more than fifteen years F Wilbur Gingrich and Frederick W Danker have worked to complete this second edition of A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament. Besides adding new material of Bauer's fifth edition, they have corrected the errors in the first English-language edition of Bauer's text, increased references to textual variants and parallel usage, added a number of new words, increased emphasis on the Hebrew milieu for understanding the New Testament by making special reference to data derived from Qumran, and have added thousands of English, French, German, and Spanish entries to Bauer's bibliography. £18.20

The Myth of the Magus
Ritual Magic
The Fortunes of Faust

The late E. M. BUTLER

These three books constitute a comprehensive study of the Faust legend and its attendant mythologies. Professor Butler traces the legends and, where possible, the actual careers of such figures as Zoroaster, Solomon, Merlin and Rasputin in The Myth of the Magus. Ritual Magic contains an analysis of a whole range of texts, from the pre-Christian rites of the Akkadians and Chaldeans to the 'Solomonic Clavicles' of medieval Europe. It also examines the careers of noted 'magicians' of the fifteenth to nineteenth centuries. Finally, in The Fortunes of Faust Professor Butler follows the Faust legend from the Spiess Faust-book of 1587 to Thomas Mann's great novel.

A New Dictionary of Philosophy

Edited by Professor Anthony Flew

This valuable handbook sets out to clear away the major confusions which arise in the use of philosophical terminology. It offers a dictionary based account of the meanings of key concepts, words and phrases as well as biographical information on major thinkers. This dictionary provides information on both Western and non-European philosophies and coverage of many of the concepts and terms used in religious discussion.

A Dictionary of Philosophy is a joint Macmillan Press and Pan Books publication.

The Debate about Christ

DON CUPITT

Mr Cupitt asserts that the historical Jesus is a much more interesting and religiously relevant figure than the divine Christ of later faith, and has the advantage of having actually lived. He pleads for more attention to be given to Jesus' words and less to the picturesque mythologization of Jesus which was always in danger of obscuring his real message – and which is in any case now obsolete. When Prophecy Failed

Reactions and responses to failure in the Old Testament prophetic traditions

ROBERT P. CARROLL

Dr Carroll first offers a detailed analysis of the sociological, psychological and linguistic environment of prophecy. Then, by making use of the theory of 'cognitive dissonance' propounded by the social psychologist Leon Festinger, he shows how reactions to the failure of prophetic expectation have affected the tradition preserved; thus he adds a completely new dimension to our understanding of the Old Testament prophets. (June) £7.50

Words in World Religions

PETER D. BISHOP

Provides definitions and descriptions of the most important words used in six religious traditions. Dr Bishop follows a generally chronological order and deals in turn with Hinduism, Jainism and Buddhism, post-biblical Judaism, Islam and Sikhism. This will be an invaluable reference book for students, as well as being a useful introduction to the major teaching of these traditions.

Religion and the Persistence of Capitalism

RONALD H. PRESTON

In these F. D. Maurice lectures, Professor Preston carries into a third stage a discussion which began half a century ago with R. H. Tawney's Religion and the Rise of Capitalism, and was developed with V. A. Demant's Religion and the Decline of Capitalism. He offers an appraisal of the whole issue in terms of the late twentieth century situation. Capitalism has proved tougher and more adaptable than was expected, and the question of how long it can continue must now be seriously considered. (July) £6.95

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor H. D. Lewis, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
