The Politics of Brazilian Development, 1930–1954

John D. Wirth. This book increases our understanding of Brazilian politics during the era of Getúlio Vargas by presenting detailed case studies of three key economic issues of the time: the foreign trade policy of the 1930's, the decision to build the Volta Redonda steelworks, and the birth of Petrobrás, Brazil's state oil monopoly. A primary objective is to explain these policies in terms of their immediate historical context. $7.95
