PORTUGUESE BRAZIL

The King's Plantation

By JAMES LANG

Portuguese Brazil: The King's Plantation examines the development of Portugal's empire in the New World. The study concentrates on the shifting commercial and political arrangements that linked colonial Brazil to Portugal, from the time of Brazil's initial settlement to its eventual independence. The point of departure for analyzing Brazil's colonial history is the formation of an export-oriented economy. In the conclusion, Lang compares important aspects of Spanish, English, and Portuguese colonization. He argues that significant differences between each colonial system can be explained by understanding the nature of the bureaucracy in Spanish America, the assembly in English America, and the export economy in Brazil.

SCIENCE AND COLONIAL EXPANSION

The Role of the British Royal Botanic Gardens

By LUCILLE H. BROCKWAY

The social and political implications of scientific research are here examined through an analysis of the botanic garden as an institution regulating the flow of information about plants of economic value. The imperial botanic garden is seen as an institution in which a small homogeneous scientific elite made and implemented decisions of world-wide implications, with the whole-hearted cooperation of the political and commercial establishment. In this study, Kew Gardens and its colonial affiliates emerge as a vital capital asset, transforming knowledge into profits and power.

PAST AND PRESENT

a journal of historical studies

Past and Present appears in February, May, August and November. It aims to publish a wide variety of scholarly and original historical articles primarily concerned with social, economic and cultural changes, and their causes and consequences.

Past and Present has a very well-established reputation. The French journal Annales has referred to it as "la plus grande revue d'histoire du monde anglophone." A review in the Times Higher Educational Supplement stated that "No historical periodical has done more than Past and Present to influence the study and teaching of history in British universities. . . . It has proved extremely fertile in new interpretations, ideas and controversies. . . . What makes Past and Present so invigorating is that it encourages historians to extend their horizons and ask new questions."

Recent important articles have included the following:

Robert Brenner, "Agrarian Class Structure and Economic Development in Pre-Industrial Europe" (no. 70, Feb. 1976)

Symposium on the article by Robert Brenner, with contributions by M. M. Postan and John Hatcher, Patricia Croot and David Parker, Heide Wunder, Emmanuel Le Roy Ladurie, Guy Bois, and R.H. Hilton (nos. 78-80, Feb.-Aug. 1978)

J.P. Cooper, "In Search of Agrarian Capitalism" (no. 80, Aug. 1978)

Howard Temperley, "Capitalism, Slavery and Ideology" (no. 75, May 1977)

W.D. Rubinstein, "Wealth, Elites and the Class Structure of Modern Britain" (no. 76, Aug. 1977)

J.D.Y. Peel, "Conversion and Tradition in Two African Societies: Ijebu and Buganda" (no. 77, Nov. 1977)

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.

Claims for missing issues will be considered only if made immediately upon receipt of the subsequent issue.
