Compagnia di San Paolo

The Compagnia di San Paolo was founded in Torino in 1563 as a charitable brotherhood and is one of Europe's most important private foundations.

The current Articles of Association, adopted in the year 2000, specify its purposes: the Foundation participates in society's activities by pursuing ends that are of public interest and social utility, with the aim of favoring civil, cultural, and economic development in the community in which it is active. Development is thus the goal, but also the criterion according to which the initiatives supported by the Compagnia are evaluated.

The areas in which the Compagnia acts are those of scientific, economic and juridical research; education; art; conservation and enhancement of cultural heritage and activities and of heritage sites; health; assistance to the socially deprived categories. These areas of intervention go side by side with interdisciplinary activities, which are more and more needed in order to respond to the complexity of modern life.

The Foundation's activities are financed with the income produced by the estate over the course of centuries and which the Compagnia has the task to pass on intact to future generations.

The Compagnia is a member of the European Foundation Centre and of ACRI, the Italian Association of Foundations of banking origin.

Accademia dei Lincei

“Founded in 1603, the Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei is the oldest academy worldwide.

The Academy promotes excellence through its Fellowship which included, among many other prestigious names, Galileo Galilei.

The Academy’s mission is to promote, coordinate, integrate and spread scientific knowledge in its highest expressions in the frame of cultural unity and universality”.

To this end, the Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei organises national and international conferences, meetings and seminars, while it’s members participate in similar Italian and foreign initiatives. The Academy promotes and carries out research activities and missions, confers awards and grants, publishes the reports of its own sessions and the notes and memoires presented therein, as well as the proceedings of the conferences, meetings and seminars organized. Finally, the Academy provides - either upon request or on its own initiative - advice to public institutions and, eventually, drafts proposals.
