

People in Political Science

Activities

Walter Beach, Director of HELDREF Publications, named president-elect of the United Nations Association/National Capitol Area.

James W. Davis, professor emeritus, Western Washington University, delivered a series of lectures on "the American Presidency" at newly established Southern Cross University, Lismore, New South Wales, Australia.

Ralph M. Goldman, director of the graduate program in Congressional Studies, department of politics, The Catholic University of America, is currently a fellow at the Ray C. Bliss Institute of Applied Politics, University of Akron. Goldman also serves as president of the Center for Party Development, Washington, D.C., and professor emeritus, San Francisco State University.

John Green, department of political science, University of Akron, is currently serving as editor of VOX POP Newsletter for the APSA Organized Section on Political Organizations and Parties.

Jorge Heine, a past president of the Chilean Political Science Association, and Under Secretary for Defense, Chilean Air Force from 1993-94, has been appointed Chilean Ambassador to South Africa by President Eduardo Frei.

Robert Katzman, professor of government, Georgetown University, hosted the first annual Marver H. Bernstein Symposium on Government Reform at Georgetown University. The lecture was delivered by Vice President Al Gore. The Bernstein Symposium was created to provide a forum for ongoing discussions with scholars, policy-makers, and students about the challenges and opportunities confronting institutions.

Lawrence D. Longley, professor of government, Lawrence University, has been named consulting editor of the forthcoming World Encyclopedia of Parliaments and Legislatures to be published in 1995-96 by Congressional Quarterly Inc.

Albert P. Melone, professor of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, was a visiting scholar at the Socio-Legal Center, Wolfson College, Oxford University, during September 1993. Melone conducted research on change and presented a seminar on the transition to democracy in Bulgaria.

Albert P. Melone

Rowan Miranda, assistant professor of public and international affairs, University of Pittsburgh, is on leave of absence. Rowan is Director of the Office of Management and Budget for the city of Pittsburgh.

Robert A. Pastor, professor of political science, Emory University, has been tapped to serve as U.S. ambassador to Panama. Pastor also serves at the Carter Center in Atlanta as a Latin America specialist.

Condoleezza Rice, provost of Stanford University and professor of political science, has been named to the Carnegie Corporation Board of Trustees.

Charles Sheldon, professor of political science, Washington State University, has been appointed the Claudius O. and Mary W. Johnson Distinguished Professor in Political Science.

James Q. Wilson, professor of political science, University of California at Los Angeles, was presented an honorary degree from Harvard University.

Maurice C. Woodard, director of minority affairs, APSA, and graduate program director, Howard University, was elected to the Board of Directors of the United Nations Association/National Capitol Area.

Administrative Appointments

Suresht Bald, chair, department of political science, Willamette University.

Susan Bourque, professor of government, Smith College, has been named Dean for Academic Development in the Office of the Dean for Faculty.

Larry W. Bowman, director, Center for Contemporary African Studies, University of Connecticut.

Edward Carmines, chair, department of political science, Indiana University.

Edwin M. Epstein, dean, School of Economics and Business Administration, Saint Mary's College of California. Epstein will also hold the Earl W. Smith Chair for Distinguished Administrative Leadership.

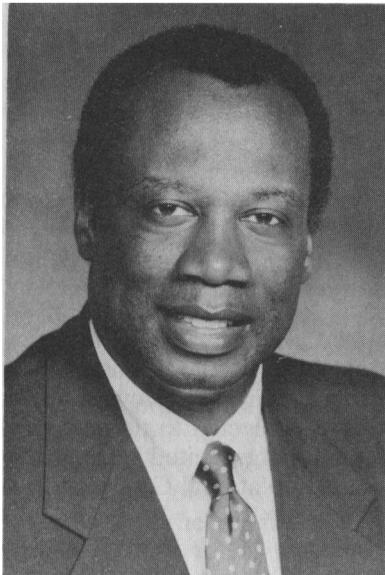

Majorie R. Hershey, director of undergraduate program, department of political science, Indiana University.

People in Political Science

Paul R. Hagner, chair, department of political science, Washington State University.

John E. Jackson, chair, department of political science, University of Michigan.

Woodrow Jones Jr., professor of political science, Texas A&M University, has been appointed dean, College of Liberal Arts.

Woodrow Jones, Jr.

Peter M. Lange, professor of political science, Duke University, has been appointed vice provost for academic and international affairs.

Walter Nicgorski, professor in the program of Liberal Studies and concurrent professor of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame, has been appointed editor of The Review of Politics.

William R. Thompson, director of graduate program, department of political science, Indiana University.

John E. Wood, chair, department of political science, Franklin College.

Cyrus E. Zirakzadeh, director, University Honors Program, University of Connecticut.

New Appointments

Andrew Appleton, assistant professor, department of political science, Washington State University.

Mark Brandon, assistant professor of political science, University of Michigan.

Velmer S. Burton, assistant professor, department of political science, Washington State University.

Carmen Cirincoine Jr., assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut; formerly Clemson University.

Susan Collins, instructor, department of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale; formerly Boston College.

Jill Crystal, department of political science, Auburn University.

Charles Epp, lecturer, department of political science, Indiana University.

Johanna Granville, assistant professor of political science, Carnegie Mellon University.

Jay Greene, assistant professor of political science, University of Houston; formerly Harvard University.

Jean-Germain Gros, assistant professor of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Walter Nicgorski

Thomas H. Hartley, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Ruth Iyob, assistant professor of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Kurt W. Jefferson, assistant professor of political science, Morning-side College; formerly visiting assistant professor of political science, Westminster College.

Robert S. Kravchuck, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut; formerly U.S. Department of the Treasury, Kiev, Ukraine.

Thomas Longoria Jr., assistant professor of political science, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; formerly Texas A&M University.

Amy G. Mazur, assistant professor, department of political science, Washington State University.

Kathleen McNamara, assistant professor of politics and international affairs, Princeton University.

Tali Mendelberg, assistant professor of politics, Princeton University.

Charles H. Moore, chair and associate professor, department of political science, Millsaps College.

Kathleen M. Moore, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut; formerly University of Rhode Island.

Dawn Nowacki, assistant professor, department of political science, Linfield College; formerly University of South Carolina.

Patrick Sellers, lecturer, department of political science, Indiana University.

John Scott, assistant professor of political science, University of Houston; formerly Dartmouth College.

Stephen J. Solarz, former congressman from New York, has joined the faculty at George Washington University as the J.B. and Maurice C. Shapiro Professor of International Affairs.

Jennifer Sterling-Folker, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut; formerly Wheaton College.

Scott Tarry, assistant professor, department of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale; formerly University of Michigan.

Elizabeth Wingrove, assistant professor of political science, University of Michigan.

Quansheng Zhao, assistant professor of political science, Old Dominion University, has been appointed visiting senior lecturer at the division of social sciences, Hong Kong University of Science and Technology for the 1994–95 academic year.

Promotions

Judith A. Baer, professor of political science, Texas A&M University.

George T. Crane, associate professor of political science with tenure, Williams College.

James C. Garand, professor, department of political science, Louisiana State University.

Lois Lovelace Duke, professor, department of political science, Clemson University.

Lois Lovelace Duke

Christopher Foreman, American University and Brookings Institution, senior fellow in governmental studies program at the Brookings Institution.

Dale A. Hathaway, associate professor of political science with tenure, Butler University.

Jeffrey Herbst, associate professor of politics and international affairs, Princeton University.

Thomas Holbrook, associate professor of political science with tenure, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Patricia A. Hurley, professor of political science, Texas A&M University.

Paul Huth, associate professor of political science with tenure, University of Michigan.

Jeffrey Isaac, professor, department of political science, Indiana University.

Woosang Kim, associate professor of political science with tenure, Texas A&M University.

James W. Muller, professor of political science, University of Alaska-Anchorage. Muller will be on leave in 1993–94 to work on his forthcoming book, The Education of Winston Churchill.

Stanley A. Reshon, professor of political science, the City University of New York.

James Stoner, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Louisiana State University.

Carol Swain, assistant professor of politics and international affairs, Princeton University.

Darrell M. West, professor, department of political science, Brown University.

Robert C. Wigton, associate professor of political science, Eckerd College. Wigton has also been selected as collegial chair of the Letters Collegium, Eckerd College.

Raymond B. Wrabley, associate professor of political science with tenure, University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Arthur Blaim, department of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis, professor and head, Institute of English, Marie Curie-Sklodowska University, Poland, visiting professor on a Fulbright Research Award.

Roy E. Miller, associate professor of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, visiting professor at Gallaudet University, Washington, D.C., from June through December 1994.

Daniel W. O'Connell, assistant professor of political science, Palm Beach Community College, has been invited to join the Kettering Foundation as a visiting professor for the 1994–95 academic year.

Stephen J. Silvia, assistant professor, School of International Service, The American University, named James Bryant Conant Fellow in the Program for the Study of Germany and Europe at the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European studies, Harvard University, during the 1994–95 academic year.

Christine Sylvester, department of political science, Northern Arizona University, has been appointed visiting fellow in the department of international relations, research school of Pacific studies, Australian National University.

Correction

Gavan Duffy, department of political science, Syracuse University, was incorrectly listed in the People in Political Science section of the June 1994 issue of PS. Duffy had been promoted to associate professor with tenure.

Retirements

Twiley Barker, professor, department of political science, University of Illinois-Chicago.

Manfred Halpern, professor of politics, Princeton University.

John P. Lovell, professor emeritus, department of political science, Indiana University.

Walfred H. Peterson, professor, department of political science, Washington State University.

Awards

AAAS Elects New Fellows

The American Academy of Arts and Sciences has announced the election of 184 new Fellows and 26 Foreign Honorary Members, in recognition of their distinguished contributions to science, scholarship, public affairs, and the arts. Among the honored were nine political scientists:

Benedict R. O'Gorman Anderson, Cornell University;
Lucius Barker, Stanford University;
Robert Kagan, University of California, Berkeley;
Keith Krehbiel, Stanford University;
Jane Mansbridge, Northwestern University;
Ronald Lynn Rogowski, University of California, Los Angeles;
Arlene Saxonhouse, University of Michigan;
Theda Skocpol, Harvard University;
Dennis Thompson, Harvard University.

ACLS names 1994 Travel Grant Recipients

The American Council of Learned Societies has named its recipients for 1994 Travel Grants. Below are listed the political scientists recommended by the APSA:

Anne Runyan, department of politics, State University of New York-Potsdam, to attend the Biannual Meeting of the International Peace Research Association;

Amy Mazur, department of political science, Indiana University-

Purdue University, to attend the European Consortium for Political Research Workshops;

Micheline Ishay, professor of human rights, University of Denver, to attend the Conference of the International Society for the Study of European Ideas;

David Weinstein, department of politics, Wake Forest University, to attend the Conference of the International Society for Utilitarian Studies;

Barry Ames, department of political science, Washington University;

Alan Dowty, department of government, University of Notre Dame;

Richard Friman, department of political science, Marquette University;

Minxin Pei, department of politics, Princeton University;

James Seroka, department of political science, University of North Florida;

Etel Solingen, department of political science, University of California, Irvine, for attending the World Congress of the International Political Science Association.

Aspen Institute Awards Grants

The Aspen Institute's Nonprofit Sector Research Fund has awarded 14 grants for the 1993-94 academic year. Two political scientists have received doctoral grants for their research. Jude L. Fernando, University of Pennsylvania, will pursue the issue of Nongovernmental Organizations as Institutional Actors in Economic Development; and Charles Heying, University of North Carolina, will address Civic Elites, Civic Institutions, and the Urban Growth Dynamic.

Guggenheim Fellowships Awarded

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has awarded fellowships for the 1994-95 year. Two political scientists were among the 147 artists, scholars, and scientists awarded fellowships: Gary King, professor of political science, Harvard University, and Elizabeth J. Perry, professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley.

Humboldt Foundation Names Fellows

The Alexander von Humboldt Foundation has named its most recent fellows, among whom are two political scientists. Andrew Arato of the New School for Social Research will receive funding for a German post-doctoral researcher under the Feodor-Lynen program, which brings young German post-doctoral researchers to spend up to three years in the United States with former Humboldt Fellows and Awardees acting as hosts and mentors. Henry S. Richardson of Georgetown University has been awarded a research fellowship for a long-term collaborative research project in Germany.

Law and Society Award

The Law and Society Association presented its 1994 Outstanding Undergraduate Paper Award to Elizabeth Myrick, a 1993 political science graduate of Bates College. Her paper, "What's Right Got to Do With It? Intimate Violence and the Potential of Postmodern Rights Theory," examines the rights consciousness among battered women in Maine. Myrick is currently a graduate student in political science at the University of Massachusetts.

Pew Faculty Fellows Named

Sixteen political scientists have been awarded Pew Faculty Fellowships in International Affairs for the 1994-95 academic year. They include

Maryann K. Cusimano, assistant professor, department of political science, The Catholic University of America;

Ivo H. Daalder, assistant professor, School of Public Affairs, University of Maryland;

Mark E. Denham, assistant pro-